

The Beech Bugle

Beech Class Embraces Learning This Term

This term, Beech Class has embraced their school routine, exploring the wealth of resources available in the classroom. Their ability to settle in has fostered a spirit of excitement and creativity, particularly evident in their new role play house located outdoors. The children have relished the opportunity to set up and engage in imaginative play, which has enhanced their teamwork and communication skills.

A highlight of their learning has been centred on the story "We're Going on a Bear Hunt." The children have created detailed story maps, engaged in artistic projects, and confidently retold the tale during class sessions. This hands-on approach not only deepens comprehension but also encourages everyone to express their thoughts through various creative outlets.

Additionally, Beech Class delved into the traditional fable "The Little Red Hen." They learned about the importance of harvesting in both historical and modern contexts. The highlight was designing and baking their own bread, allowing students to experience the process from seed to loaf. Their hard work culminated in a performance of the story during the Harvest Service, showing their newfound knowledge and skills.

In Religious Education, Beech Class has been diving into the theme of belonging. The children shared family photos, learning how Christians connect with their community by celebrating traditions and attending church services together. The thoughtful discussions fostered a deeper understanding of faith and togetherness.

Looking ahead, the children are eager to build on these experiences, continuing their journey of exploration and discovery. Their enthusiasm for learning is truly inspiring, setting a remarkable tone for the rest of the academic year.
