

The Beech Bugle

This term, Beech Class has embarked on an enriching journey of learning, focusing on the theme of homes and habitats across the globe. The children have engaged in thoughtful discussions around their own homes, reflecting on family dynamics and the significance of the spaces we inhabit.

As part of their studies, they have explored the contrasting climates and weather patterns between polar regions and their own environment. This comparison enabled the children to appreciate the diverse living conditions that exist worldwide. The children also discovered fascinating facts about the unique animals that call the Arctic and Antarctica their home.

Inspired by the book 'Lost and Found' the children designed and made boats that could carry the boy and penguin safely to the South Pole.

The classic tale of the 'Three Little Pigs' served as an inspiring framework for the children to design their own resilient homes, ensuring safety in imaginative and practical ways. Furthermore, they have developed their artistic skills by learning various techniques for joining paper, resulting in the creation of model houses.

Overall, this term has been a vibrant celebration of creativity, critical thinking, and cultural appreciation in Beech Class.

This term at Forest School, the children have engaged in imaginative storytelling outdoors, discovering evidence of dragons and mythical creatures on our school grounds. They have also continued to enhance their skills in joining and constructing structures, fostering collaboration and creativity in a natural setting.
